Let A be an arbitrary real number. The central limit theorem tells us that, as n tends to $+\infty$, N_n/n tends, in distribution, to a random variable X with a standard normal distribution. In fact, N_n is the number of independent standard normal variables that are needed to build up N_n . To prove this, we can use the representation $N_n = \sum_{k=1}^n \chi_{(k)}$ and get $N_n \left(\frac{\chi_{(k)}}{k} - \frac{\chi_{(n+1)}}{n+1} \right) = X - A \sqrt{\frac{n(n+1)}{4}}$ as the difference between two central limit theorems. Of course, this doesn't yet tell us much as A is still an unspecified
